Introduction

In this volume of the Panther we have striven to make tangible the spirit which dwells in our college; perhaps we have failed; and yet if in after years you should turn its pages, and catch for one instant the vision of service, which dwells in the heart of our great Alma Mater, and set forth once again to achieve what you once dreamed of, we have not striven in vain.

Classes

Youth, the demand of all the world---
 Youth, the very spirit of life---
 Serene in its faith and confidence
 In a universe of pleasure and strife
 Into the world without doubt or fear;
 For God is the Chosen Mate,
 The Guiding Hand of a nation,
 The Pilot of its fate.

Senior Class History

This brief history of the largest graduating class Clarke College has ever had will deal only with those members who have been faithful to the end. Some have fallen by the wayside for different causes. Others have kept the faith and finished the course. We are proud of our class, not only because it is twice as large as any other Class that has gone out from Clarke College, but because of the fine spirit of loyalty and brotherly love that exists among its members.

In 1920-21 Ike Bass and H. H. Bethune entered the Class of Twenty-Seven. They doubtless had several class mates, but, as stated above, we are particularly interested in those who stuck to the job.

In 1921-22 W. U. Edwards joined the Class.

In 1922-23 Mr. Bass and Mr. Edwards dropped out for a while and Mr. Bethune alone was left to represent the Class at that time.

In 1923-24 W. G. Byars, Albert Gates, W. H. Keen, and D. W. McDaniel were added to the Class.

In 1924-25 Ruth Berry, Robert Bateman, Evelyn Gates, Charles Gates, R. B. Moulder, Mrs. R. B. Moulder, Amy McDaniel, J. E. McCraw, Joe Spann, and W. W. Simpson were added to our number.

In 1925-26 we increased in number by leaps and bounds. The following enrolled: Dudley Fay Allen, Nonnie Ainsworth, Nola Ainsworth, Mary Belle Adcock, Oury Buckley, C. M. Beckett, Jimmie Bennett, Nelson Barron, R. C. Bounds, Mrs. Ike Bass, Elton Barlow, W. M. Bell, Ethelyn Cox, Wheeler Cathey, Charles Crawford, Charles Crosby, Edna Pearle Daves, O. B. Dukes, P. L. Douglas, Gwendolen Ellis, Howard Fikes, Colon Golden, Mabel Gordon, Eunice Grimes, Bennie Hurst, I. E. Hairston, Walter Herrington, Clarence Johnson, Arthur Lorange, Jessie Lee, Pellam Mills, J. B. Moore, Annabel Moore, Lena Mangum, Oneida McDill, Howard McDowell, William McMullan, Nida Mooney, Roy Nester, Olon Nelson, Ethel Overbey, Myrtis Palmer, David Patterson, W. C. Palmer, Edward Powe, Minnie Velma Russell, Mary Eula Rowzee, Estelle Walker, C. M. Williamson, Stanley Youngblood, and Ike Bass and W. U. Edwards came back to us again.

In 1926-27 we enrolled eleven seniors from other schools: Bess Butler, Gladys Nutt, Beatrice Courtney, Tymia Bryant, Mayvis Prewitt, Lorene May, R. W. Westcott, W. B. Mobley, Edna Everett, Guy Burns, and Margaret Sadler.

This is a total of eighty members who will actually receive their diplomas from Clarke College this session. We have not such a long history, but just watch our future.

Deeds Not Words

Let Deeds not Words our Motto be,
 As we shall span life's rolling sea,
 And may our deeds be pure as gold,
 And lead some lost to the shepherd's fold.

We want our deeds to smooth the road,
 For those who come with heavy load,
 And may the paths of life be straight
 And lead them to the pearly gate.

Some travel on the broad highway,
 That leads to endless night:
 May deeds we do and words we say,
 Lead them in paths of right.

May joys be deep as ocean blue,
 And sorrows light as foam,
 And when our deeds on earth are through,
 May Heaven be our home.

Junior Class Prophecy

After much wondering and speculating as to the whereabouts of our old C. M. C. Junior class mates, we decided to make an extensive tour of the entire state of Mississippi and see for ourselves. We thereupon backed our tin lizzie cut and went rattling off down the road, and thus our journey began.

We stopped at one of the numerous country filling stations to water "lizzie". A short, fat man, greasy from head to foot came out and ministered to our needs. Behold, Curtis Beard! We talked over old times and he told us especially one astounding thing: Bryant and his wife, Bashaba Summers, were missionaries in Africa!

About a mile farther down the road we discovered an overturned Ford. Under it we found Elmer Blaylock, who was then a baking power salesman, badly injured. We rushed him to the nearest Baptist hospital and called a doctor. J. L. Davis came out, and, calling Beulah Butler, his nurse, he attended to the patient.

Feeling the call for food after such excitement, we went to a cafe. We found Helan Ellis to be the owner. Velma Windham, his wife, was his efficient waitress. They gave us a Booster and we discovered that Rupert Stribling was President of C. M. C. Beatryce Craft was his secretary, Mae Henry Ward, matron of the dormitory, and Mary Pickering, expression teacher. After finishing our dinner, we started out again. Down the street a few blocks we noticed an immense crowd gathered around a platform in the park. Inquiring the meaning of the crowd, we learned that the famous lecturer, Caley Neal, was the man whose voice had attracted our attention with its unintelligible peals of thunder. Having heard the wind blow before, we passed on.

As we drove leisurely down the street my eye was attracted to a tall, stooped man who was rolling a wheelbarrow down the street and loading it with trash. When we overtook him he looked up and spoke. It was James Richmond!

Later in the afternoon, away out in the country, twenty miles from nowhere we stopped on a bridge to water our ever-thirsty lizzie. There sat "Sadler Bill" on the bank of the creek contentedly fishing life away. We accepted his invitation to spend the night at his house and enjoyed very much the hospitality of him and his wife, Mary Roberts. After enjoying a hearty fish supper, we went to the home of a more wealthy neighbor to hear a radio program. Curtis Hawkins and his wife, Lucille Wilson, entertained us well. One number on the radio was especially interesting. That was a quartet ordered from Sears, Roebuck & Company. C. B. Gordy was the famous bass singer, Floyd May sang tenor, Earl Smith soprano and Lamar Searcy alto. Another good number came from Paris, a regular old fashioned break down dance, called by Hollis Jordan. The last number was a lecture given by our new President, Jimmie Cox. After the program, refreshments were served by a dainty little maid who proved to be Ilah Perry.

The next morning we left to go to a large saw mill town a few miles distant. The mill was owned by Lamar Johnson and his faithful wife, Cleo Daniel. We learned that Melvin Smith was a skidder foreman, Robert Hunt the blacksmith, Cecil Anderson the barber, B. B. Duckworth the night watchman, Mr. J. B. Middleton town cobbler, Freshman Harper waiter, and Red Oakes pastor of the town. That night we attended the theater and saw four of the world's most famous movie stars, C. J. Johnston, Robert Lee, Virgie Hawkins, and Clara Marie Davis. We learned how Lee's wife, Eva Miley, had encouraged and inspired him on to the marvelous success which he was now enjoying. Johnston was playing the part of Jesse James, and the others had similar important parts. Edwin Sansing, owner of the show, explained to us how fortunate he was in being able to show so many of his old class mates.

In the lobby of the little hotel owned by Mr. and Mrs. Gill, we saw a lady talking as fast as her lips could move. It was Clyde Hays. She said that her husband, J. D. Tabor, was manager of a gold mine in Sullivan's Hollow. The stockholders of the mine were C. W. Banks, Flynt Craig, and Herman Sullivan, with their wives, Maxie Armstrong, Edith Blaylock, and Mattie Mae Allen. She also told us that Birtie Meeks and Agnes Wilkerson were old maid school teachers, teaching science in the mountain schools. After supper we all went to see the two famous ballet dancers, Edith Sullivan and Lizzie Nabors.

Not being in any hurry whatsoever, but being out on a purely pleasure trip, we stopped to listen to the music of the salvation army. Can you imagine our astonishment when we recognized the preacher as Truett Allman. One never can tell. We became interested and upon nearer approach noticed that his singers were Barnes and his wife, Jewell Dowdle, and Ford and his wife, Nell Horne. Without even interrupting their good work, we passed on down the street to a quieter section of the town. Suddenly our attention was attracted by a familiar voice: "Evening paper! Extra special! Double mur-der!!" It cried. Turning around, we faced our beloved song leader, Mr. Cooper. We bought the paper and drove on. In box car letters across the front of the paper we saw the announcement that a prize had been awarded to Angie Everett for the swimming the English Channel. Another interesting news item was a trip around the world planned by four great aviators, Durward Harrison, Vardaman Hawkins, Lamar Jones, and Estus Boggan.

We soon left town again for the open country. The first sign of human habitation that we saw was about ten miles from town. We came within sight of a small church house where it seemed that there was much excitement. Resolved to miss nothing, we dropped in. Rev. Otto Westerfield, the pastor, was just performing the marriage ceremony of Earnest McDill and Vernella Moulder. Addie Holmes was maid of honor.

About three miles from the church we overtook a couple of old people in a buggy. It was Coit Woodham and his wife, Cora Lay. They had been to town to exchange their vegetables and eggs for flour, lard and coffee.

Soon we came to another small town. "Fresh eggs, vegetables!" was the first thing we heard. Dewey Tullos was making the noise.

Finally, we reached home just in time for the famous Fancher Circus, (T. B. Fancher, owner) which had just come to our town. Mary Thompson was the lion tamer.

Ho, ho, hum! Such is life!

The road is rough, the task is hard;
We're climbing day by day,
Temptations come that we must guard
Along life's happy way.

Across our path a vision flits,
Of higher things—a goal;
We grasp, we fall, we rise again,
More firmly take our hold.

We're academics weak and small
Will you take hold of our hand,
And lead us up the mountain tall
And by us ever stand?

This help the world calls for my friend
Will you stand by and rest,
And never lift a helping hand
To those that are in distress.

Then class of Academics rise
Let's meet our task today,
With vim, and push, and smiling face,
Success will crown our way.

On and on moves the universe---

Find A Way Or Make One

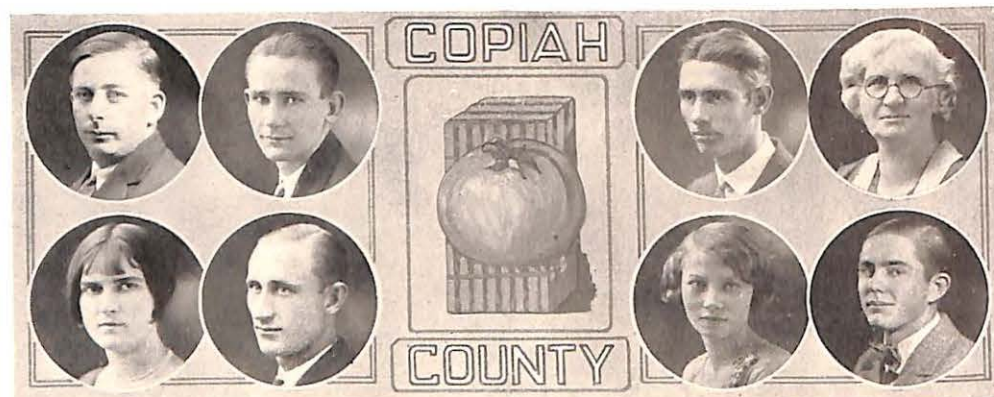

To have a definite aim in life
To have a goal to attain
Is the first step on the upward ladder
That reaches out to fame.

The drifter never gets anywhere.
True, he can view the famous from afar;
But we are hoping to be among the ten per cent
Who push on with a burning desire and reach their star.

Select the ladder that extends to the eastern star
Where opportunities are rife;
So that when once attained, we may look back and say
We made a worth-while record in the toil and strife.

We know which way we are traveling, and why,
And then, when the fight is won,
We may look back over our life and say,
Where there was not a way, we made one.

Athletics

Days of toil and play,
And hopes of making the team;
Many perhaps have slept till day,
But others have found their dream.

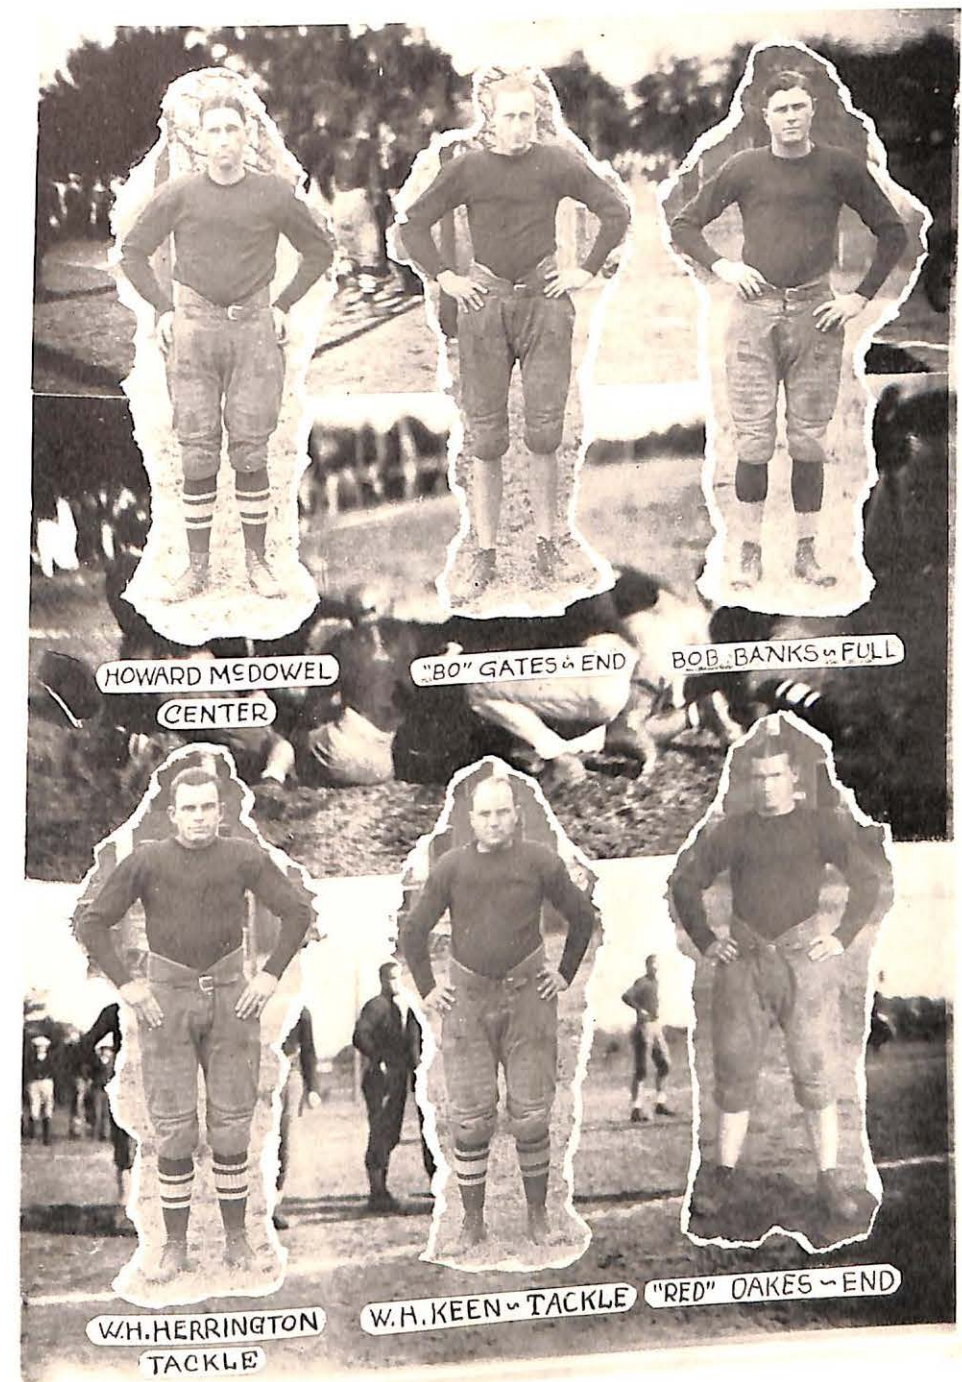

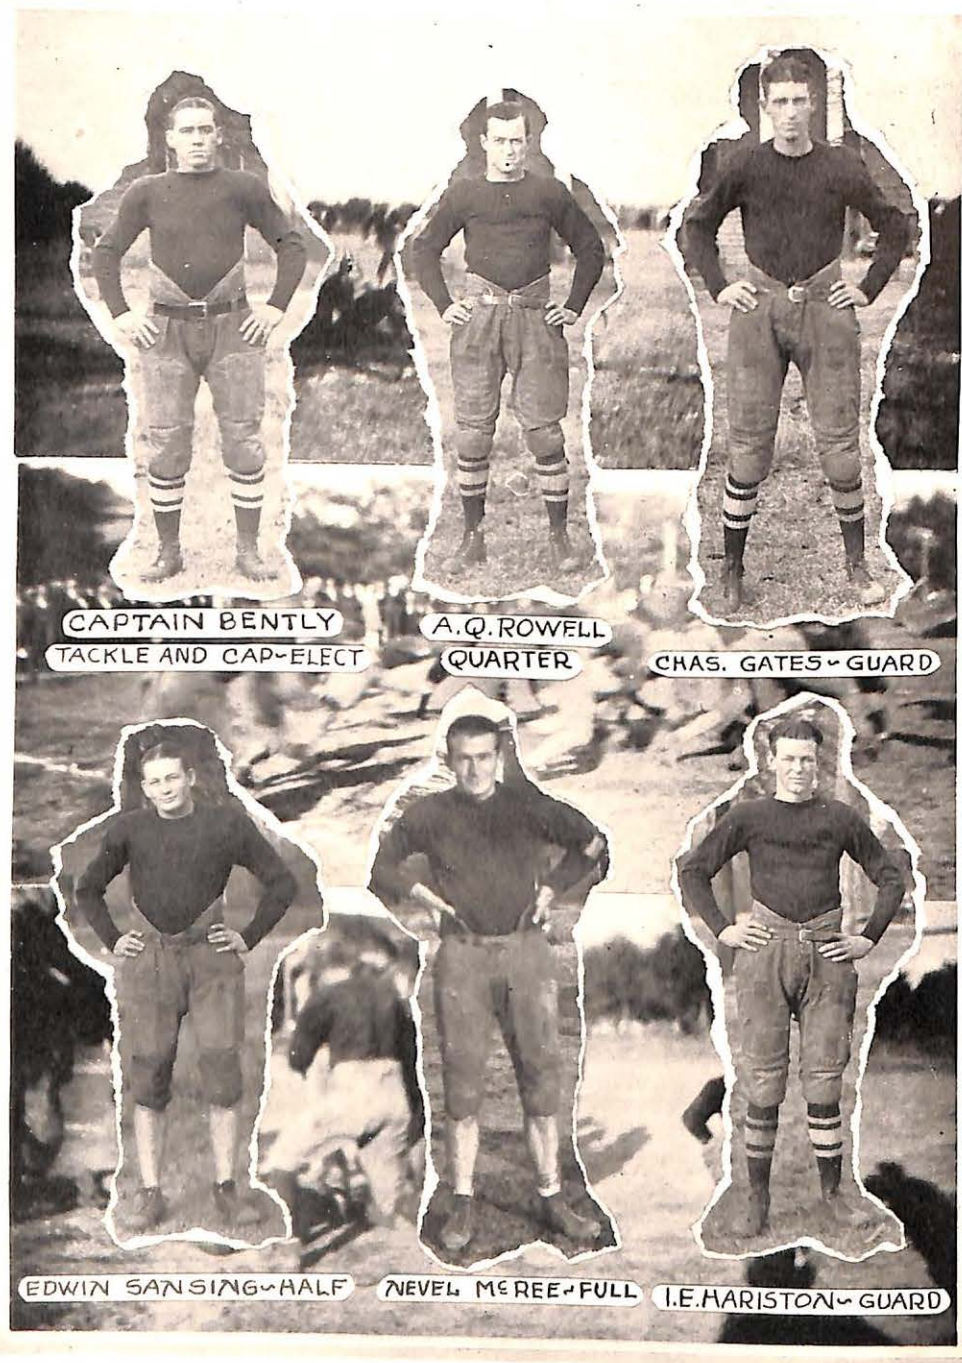

For the year of 1926-27 Clarke College was fortunate in securing as Director of Athletics Coach Berry, graduate of Mississippi College where he made a record in athletics that is seldom, if ever equaled. He was a three letter man. Each of the three years he was eligible for the varsity foot ball, basket ball, and base ball teams. He is a lover of the games. His efficiency as a player enables him always to put a team of hard clean fighters on the field.

Here and There

Campus Memories

Give me back the days of youth,
'Twas here I spent the many happy hours;
When all of nature in beauty and truth,
Was bursting forth in fragrant flowers.

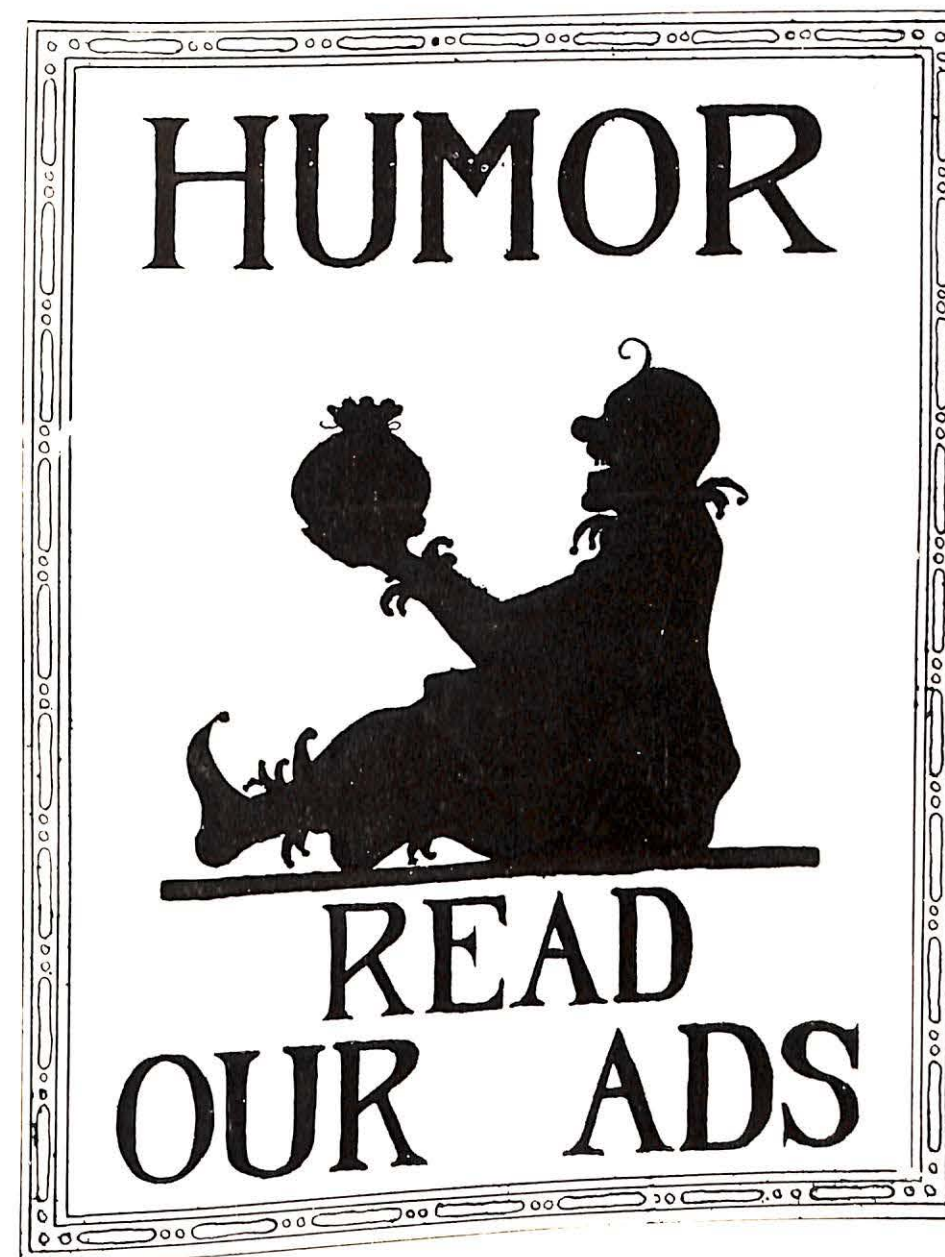

Yea, the old familiar campus scene,
Under the trees beneath the spreading boughs;
In all thy wondrous beauty serene
Will I ever to my heart espouse.

'Twas on a rustic bench beneath the shade
That I sat and listened to friends in glee;
May such joys from memory never fade
When later, I'm giving my service to humanity.

Yes, with every pleasure comes a duty,
But what e'er this of mine may chance to be;
I shall ne'er forget the wondrous beauty,
Of the dear old college campus of C. M. C.

So, when from all these scenes so dear
Each, may go to greatness and renown,
May lasting friendships, made while here
Follow us, while others may be found.

THE IRRESISTIBLE POWER OF SMALL, REGULAR SAVINGS

Do you remember poor Wilkins Micawber's economic summary? In effect; outgo, ninety-nine dollars and ninety-five cents. Result—happiness. But income a hundred dollars; outgo one hundred dollars and five cents—result, misery.

It seems impossible to many that a nickel one way or the other, can make any difference. But the extraordinary power of the regular savings of any small amount of money cannot be appreciated until you have tried it.

THE BACHELOR: PAST, PRESENT AND FUTURE

Past: Once in the past, not many years ago, the Bachelors saw fit to organize their forces in an effort to get a wife, and to be of the greatest help and fellowship to each other. Many times since the Bachelors have organized; there have been many beautiful pictures painted on the walls of our memory that shall never fade away, and the fond memories shall linger with us as we face life's setting sun. The ties of brotherhood in the Bachelor's Club has made our College life more real and has hung the silver lining of joy and pleasure on the clouds of loneliness for each true Bachelor. There has been a Golden Dream placed in the mind of those who once slept.

Present: The Bachelor's Club now serves as a rudder to one of the greatest ships of this Golden Age, (The Court-ship). Many Bachelors are on board this ship today sailing toward the harbor of wedlock, and we will never fear the storm for the ship is guided by the Bachelor's Club, and perchance the Pilot is a BACHELOR. There comes a thrill of joy to the heart of each Bachelor when we think who will greet us at the harbor to clasp our hands in theirs and say, "Well done" you have sailed for a worthy cause. The real pleasure of the present comes with the annual Banquet, where there are all the good eats that could be mentioned, and the thrill of each Bachelor to bring his (?) lady friend, along to see the Bachelor's need for a WIFE.

Future: When we shall have landed this old ship in the Golden harbor and met with the one we love, and there make the Golden dreams come true, we shall have accomplished the aim and Motto of the Bachelor's Club. Sometime in the future we expect to see the real true meaning of the pictures that were painted on the walls of our memories in days gone by. When we Bachelors shall have found our Better Half and settled down in a cozy little "Love-Nest" built for two fond lovers, and then, let the rest of the world go by.

A BACHELOR.

TO MY BACHELOR BROTHER

By T. J. Harper

I used to think I would not wed,
Till some one suited me,
But now I've changed my mind a bit,
I must suit her you see.

Time and tide waits for no man,
Why do you sit and sigh,
For old maids wait for all men,
To catch one as they pass by.

Remember well and bear in mind,
A real true wife is hard to find,
If you get one that's good and true,
Leave not the old one for a new.
